LANSDOWNE CHILDREN'S CENTRE / OUR SERVICES / CHILD & YOUTH WORKER

Child & Youth Worker

What is a Child and Youth Worker?

A Child and Youth Worker provides supportive counselling to those who are coping with the implications of a diagnosis/special need. This professionally trained worker can support children, adolescents and their families, individually and in groups.

Who is eligible for a Child and Youth Worker?

Children and youth receiving services from the Centre and their families are eligible for Child and Youth Worker Services.

- Adjustment to illness & disability
- Managing client stress and developing healthy coping strategies
- Building social skills
- Behaviour strategies and support for parents and caregivers
- Building confidence and self-advocacy skills
- Planning decisions and emotional needs when transitioning to adult services
- Sibling support needs

Education and support can be provided for a variety of topics on a needs basis. Workshop topics may include: internet safety, community safety & independence, bullying and self-esteem. Groups can offer help for sibling support needs, youth transition and healthy relationships & sexual education.

What can I expect?

The Child and Youth Worker focuses on the growth of clients and is flexible in providing strategies that will suit each individual. From play therapy to in-office counselling, the Child and Youth worker can use a wide variety of therapeutic interventions. Goals are created collaboratively with children, youth and their families to help guide the intervention.

To make a referral, speak to your child's team member or call the Centre at 519-753-3153 and ask to speak to someone in our Intake Department at ext. 206.
